LEUTENANT LOUISA.

By JULIAN HAWTHORNE.

(Copyright, All rights reserved.)

Mrs. Crump, it appeared, desirous of testifying her gratitude for my little attention, had commissioned Mary to present to me in her name one of the most valuable little books on the chest of drawers. This little volume of mine was shared by Mr. Bruce, who had a magnificent collection; but while he had sent it to me, he had also sent it to Mr. Crump, and Mr. Crump's Christmas present was an old copy of A. Brown Part in fair preservation except as to the old calf binding, which needed repair. It was turning over the familiar leaves and showing the many some of the least common of the

He and I turned over the book together and had some talk about the anthology and the volume, and it certainly exclaimed with some excitement.

"This is extraordinary. Did you not know that Mrs. Crump had a copy of the book?"

"On the fly leaf was written in a straight, stiff handwriting, 'Dalrymple

Brace, Oct. 1, 1870.'"

"We looked at it together in silence for about a minute. Mr. Bruce spoke first.

"Who was your Mrs. Crump? Do you know her maiden name?"

"I know nothing about her except that she once told me she was in service at Chickadee in 1870, in Bedfordshire."

"In what part of Bedfordshire is Chickadee?"

"Really I don't know; my acquaintance with the place is confined to Asper-gill and Wolcott, and it certainly is not in that neighborhood."

"Do you mind my keeping that I mentioned to you?"

"You had better perhaps come with me. Come to my chambers about 11, and we will look at the book together."

I willingly agreed to be with him at the hour named, and the next day accordingly we interviewed Mrs. Crump.

She was a woman of a certain kind of cross-examination. He, however, elicited the information that her maiden name was Mellicott, and that she had been a laborer in Lord Ogley's employ at Warden, Bedfordshire. Her mother's maiden name she did not know. Both her father and mother were dead. They both died while in service at Chickadee, and she had been in the service of Mr. Crump's father, who had died when she was a child. She had lived with her family like a child, and there was no family likeness between them.

There was an old almanac. There they were the drawers, and we were quite welcome to look at them, or for that matter, to take them away. Mrs. Crump was not at all the books on the drawers; it was in her "box." Her box was under the bed, and if we were particularly wanted to see this almanac she would get it for us.

It did not seem to me that almanac very particularly indeed; but I made Mrs.

Crump sit in her chair while I pulled the box out from under the bed, and dragged it up in front of her. She opened it, revealing a strange, heterogeneous collection of articles, whose descent or wherefore treasured only Mrs.

Crump—possibly not even she—could tell.

There is not much more to my story.

Mrs. Crump—otherwise Lieutenant Louisa—got well, and passed the rest of her days in peace and plenty. My antiquity little book—made once to me and

THE LIFE OF A SPONGE.

ITS DEVELOPMENT FROM ARTICLES OF PROTOPLASM.

How the Work of Nutrition is Carried Out in the Cells of the Body.

Common Article—A Familiar Scientific

Talk by a Noted Man.

First of all we may note that a sponge, as we know it in common life, is the berry skeleton or framework, which was made by and which supported the living parts. These living parts consisted of minute masses of that living jelly to which the name of protoplasm has been applied. This, in truth, is the universal matter of life. It is the one substance with which life everywhere is associated,

and as we see it simply in the sponge, so we see it in the most complex growth in the man.

Now the living parts of this dried, catenary sponge were found both in its interior and on its surface. They lined the canals that everywhere permeate the sponge, and they were not a single unit, examination has told us a great deal about their nature. For whether found in the canals of the sponge, or in the solid parts, they were all of the same kind. So that the first view I would have you take of the sponge as a living mass is that it is a colony and not a single unit.

It is composed, in other words, of aggregated masses of living particles which behold it as an adequate and a very acceptable substitute, the field of operations being kept in good condition by frequent bathing and rubbing, especially in the case of the sponge, which is a very delicate and sensitive organism.

Good Housekeeping.

Executive Ugliness to Soldiers.

Ugliness as a disqualification case seems intelligible in a candidate for matrimony.

It is certainly less so when the question is one of fitness for military service.

This, however, is one of the last of disqualifications laid down by the head of the medical department in a manual just issued on "Conscription in France." Laterly the French authorities have been much more liberal in admitting the claims of men who do not wish to serve.

The rejection is 5 per cent. more numerous than at the previous conscription. The French are looking more to the quality of their army than to the number of recruits. Economic considerations, however, prevent a man from being rejected on account of his ugliness.

Mrs. C. W. Moorman returned last Friday from a pleasant visit to her sister-in-law, Mrs. John T. Hatchet, at Henderson.

Mrs. A. B. Skillman, Mrs. C. W. Moorman, Mrs. Wm. Vest and Mrs. R. E. Moorman spent yesterday with Mrs. Holt, at Holt.

A prominent educator has remarked that those pupils who are newspaper readers at home prove themselves the best and brightest scholars.

Rev. W. K. Penrod was called to Hawselle Monday to conduct the funeral of Mrs. Mary Morelock, who died there Sunday. She was 79 years old.

"That 'mid air walking man' has been the talk in and around Hardinsburg for a week. It is no joke. The DeJernette boys tell it for a fact, and say it is true.

R. F. Beard & Co., the old reliable firm of Hardinsburg, will hereafter be regular contributors to our advertising columns. Watch their space, read and profit by what they have to say.

Miss Judith Miller left yesterday for Richmond, Va., to visit the family of Rev. J. T. Ter, former pastor of the Baptist Church in this city. Mr. F. N. DeLay and wife accompanied her as far as Cincinnati.

The log cabin in which Lincoln lived as a boy, and in which his father and mother were married, in Washington county, Ky., has been sold to Chicago parties. The building will be transferred to the grounds of the World's Fair.

We have contracted with Messrs. John P. Maxwell & Son for a fine man's saddle, one of their own manufacture. It is to be given away to the subscribers of the News, and will be on exhibition, together with a lot of other presents, at Hardinsburg next Monday. The subscription price is now only one dollar a year in advance.

Mrs. C. D. Temple received the sad intelligence last week of the killing of her brother, Mr. T. F. LaFoe, on his plantation near Stonewell, Miss. He was shot by his brother-in-law, Brit. Lee, who was a tenant on his farm. The difficulty grew out of a misunderstanding over some work. Mrs. Temple has the sympathy of the entire community in her great affliction.

The Commercial Club of this city met Monday night for the purpose of raising funds for a new hall. There was a pretty full attendance, and several matters of interest to the town were discussed and committees appointed to work them up. Hon. D. R. Murray resigned his office as President, owing to a pressure of other business, which prevented his giving the office his proper attention. Hon. D. Hamilton was elected to fill the vacancy, and Mr. T. C. Toney was elected Permanent Secretary. A meeting was called for next Thursday night, when it is hoped there will be a full attendance and the work of permanent organization be completed.

Dr. Barnum and Engineer Holmes came down Monday night to test the gas well bored for the Soda Ash Company. They were at work all day yesterday and from what could be learned their report will be favorable. It is a good well and shows a pressure nearly equal to the Ocala well. It is understood that if the Company accepts this well another one will be put down for salt water. It is also said that the company will go ahead at once with a brick factory, using the gas for that purpose. Nothing yet has been made public as to their plans and all the information we have comes through second hands and we give it for what it is worth.

We made our first trip over the L. & N. & W. to Hardinsburg, Monday. The road is in good condition, makes good time, and is doing a splendid business. Gardfield has grown to be quite a good town, and has the appearance of a well settled place. Several new houses are in course of erection. Harned is a new town that has sprung up since the road has been built, and is, so Mr. H. M. McCracken informed us, one of the best shipping points on the road. The road is principally in lumber and staves. The road has been a great help to this section of our country, and the people all along the line are well pleased with its management.

Walking in Mid Air.

Last Sunday a week ago, while Wm. and Joseph DeJernette were standing in their barn talking with each other, their attention was attracted to a man on the fence across an open field, some two hundred yards from them. The man was walking in mid air, four feet above the top of the rails. Joe was the first to see him, and saw the man come from the ground gradually at first, and had walked a hundred yards when he directed the attention of his brother William to him. At this time both of the DeJernettes watched the man walk the air directly above the fence, a distance of 150 yards. He was dressed in a black suit of clothes and wore a white hat. After the man disappeared, they walked over to the fence to see if they could discover any trace of his having been on the ground, but there was nothing to indicate that he had been on foot. The fence ran along the big road, and was in full view of them. They say they do not know how to account for the thing, but the man was certainly walking in the air.

Both of the DeJernettes were in the city Sunday visiting friends.

Mr. John A. Gregory, an old and much respected citizen of this city, died at his home here last Friday.

A Tribute to the Goodness and Lovable Character of James H. Lydan, Deceased.

In the death of James Houston Lydan, which occurred at his father's residence, 15 minutes to 4 o'clock a. m., Oct. 9, 1890, of typhoid fever, the community in the neighborhood of Webster sustained a loss that will be keenly felt for many years to come, not only by the sorrow stricken father and mother, brother and only sister, but by the whole people. No man, woman or child ever knew him but to love him, and the longer they were associated with him, the stronger and deeper grew the attachment.

During the 28 years the writer has known the subject of this sketch, which constituted his whole life, and notwithstanding the fact that he was a prominent member of the best society, and being engaged in public business, viz., general merchandise, never in all that time have we heard of him doing a dishonest or unkindness toward him; no soul so small as to envy him, no scandal monger bold enough to face the public and say aught of him save in kindness. Possessed of a physical appearance very nearly the perfect in manly stature and symmetry, large, brownish gray eyes that always looked the world squarely, firmly, yet kindly, in the face, strictly honest and fair in his dealings with his fellow-men, liberal and charitable to a fault; no person, be they white or black, ever applied to him in distress and went away empty-handed; a friend to everybody and esteemed by all, in proof of which he died when but few were expecting it.

At his funeral were gathered the largest and saddest crowd we ever met in the country on a like occasion. During the life there was in him a fountain of inexhaustible good humor and catching mirth, fond of a kindly joke, yet never known to perpetrate a cruel jest. No friend ever felt the sting of biting sarcasm from him, ever kind and thoughtful to others. He has gone to eternal rest loved by all, disliked by none, and almost idolized by his immediate family and friends. The spirit he possessed was from above, pure and gentle. Years may come and pass away and be forgotten, but the noble countenance of James Lydan will reach generations yet unborn. His excellency of character, purity of mind, together with generous words and noble deeds, marked conspicuously his whole life, which should give to the dark cloud that lowers upon his home to-day a silver lining. The funeral offering at his grave in the holy ground at Paradise church has no equal in the past, and was a fit emblem of his life and the esteem in which he was held.

He had the best medical assistance the country could afford, and your humble correspondent, with many others, stood by him throughout his suffering, administering to his wants in every way our limited intelligence could conceive of; but all this could not stay the hand of that despoiler, death, and life ebbed out without a struggle, groan or gasp. How can we do without him? Is the universal cry of the whole community; but it has even been thus—those whom we love most are the first to go. "I never loved a tree flower but it was the first to fade away." But bowing ourselves to the inevitable, we can say, in heartfelt sympathy with his sadly bereaved father, mother, brothers and sister, God bless him and them. God bless his memory. — AMOS AND JAMES.

UNION STAR.

Several of the citizens attended the home fair. C. M. McGlothlin spent several days in Louisville, last week. Helen and Willie Miller have returned to school at Louisville. Mrs. Ricketts visited relatives in and about Hardinsburg, last week. Mr. S. J. Jolly, of Missouri, was visiting his sister, Mrs. Reuben Ricketts. Mrs. Owen Cunningham has returned after a two week's visit in Louisville. Miss Alice Hawkins and brother, Little Hubert, are visiting Mr. Joe Cunningham. Miss Tibbia Wheeler has returned home after a long visit to New Albany, Ind.

Mr. Geo. Cashman, of New Albany, Ind., is visiting relatives and friends in this vicinity.

Mrs. Emma Parks and Miss Lola Skillman, of Clinton Mills, were visiting Mrs. Watling last week.

Master Owen Brashear accompanied by his brother, Claud, has returned to his home at Midway, Ky.

Francis Cart and Sandy Hendley, attendants of the Owensboro Fair and reported a splendid Fair and pleasant trip.

We are sorry to report the death of Miss Nellie Brashear, of consumption at her home at Preston on Friday the 10th.

Miss Nellie had long been aware that she could not live long, and to her friends often expressed a willingness to go, and a hope of meeting them all in Heaven.

Her remains followed by many friends and relatives were brought here Saturday and interred beside those of her brother, Mr. Sam. Brashear, Jr., Rev. J. W. Braden conducted the funeral service.

Her parents and friends and brothers have the sympathy of many friends.

Her father, Mr. J. W. Braden, is a member of the Methodist Episcopal church, the funeral was conducted by Rev. Maucker. It has never before fallen to my lot to witness so solemn a scene as that of not less than eight hundred persons following the funeral cortege marching to the home of the city.

Her husband, mother and two sisters to mourn her loss, who have the heartfelt sympathy of the writer, a true friend.

MEDICINE

Is very necessary sometimes for a fellow to take, but none the less necessary is a good warm Suit of Clothes or Overcoat. The weather at this time of the year is very changeable, and sudden cold snaps spring up when least expected; to be prepared for these "snaps" and thus ward off a possible spell of sickness, come to our great exposition of home-made Clothing, all our own production, and make selection of what you need; we will make the prices satisfactory. Visiting doctors in attendance on the medical convention, and other strangers in the city, can spend an hour very pleasantly and profitably by visiting our immense emporium of Men's, Boys' and Children's Clothing. Remember we are the only clothing house in the city that don't sell factory-made Clothing. Everything on our counters is made in our own house by our own cutters and tailors. Our Clothing is all warranted and our prices lower than any other house.

In Ladies' and Gent's Fashions.

In Dress Goods

Our visitors are all delighted with our elegant stock, positively the largest and most complete line in the city with an elegant assortment of trimmings to suit each pattern on our shelves.

IN SHOES

We put our "John Ruby" Ladies' and Gent's Shoes against the world, for they fit like a glove and wear till quite a question has sprung up, which is the better our "Ruby" Shoe or our old reliable "Buel" goods.

IN CLOTHING

We please all, for our styles are the latest, quality the best, and prices will sell them.

OVERCOATS:

To Quail Hunters.

The season is now near at hand when every one who is interested in the preservation of the quail should keep an eye open for the deadly pot-hunter, who is already abroad in the land. These bushwhacking breakers of the law do not for a moment hesitate to take the life of the father or mother quail, thereby jeopardizing a whole crop of young quails each time this is done. The young ones which have been recently hatched are of course entirely too young to provide for themselves and they need the care of the old ones, and they should not be molested. There is a very stringent law relative to the shooting of pot-hunters before the close of the season, and the lovers of this sport should see that the violators of this law are apprehended and in every instance punished.—Russellville Ledger.

Breckenridge Circuit Court.

McEl. Messers, Esrs., Plaintiffs v. McEl. Messers, Esrs., Defendants. Equity.

All persons having claims against the estate of McEl. Messers, deceased, are hereby notified that the said claims be presented to the undersigned Commissioner of the county of Breckenridge, for their examination and allowance, on or before the 25th day of November next.

Given under my hand this 18th day of September, 1890.
Y. O. BARRAGE,
Clerk of the Court.

A Public Necessity

It is deplorable that the guardians of the public welfare have not enterprise enough to furnish guide-boards at intersections with highways leading to Cloverport.

As usual, we lead in the good work and our first board is erected right here:
